

What We Know and Don't Know
by Valerie Senyk

I try to imagine how my speech sounds to the Chinese ear

I think: slow, serious vowels shortened
consonants snapped and pushed

There's a cacophony vowels lengthened
tones rise, fall, flatten, dip

To speak Mandarin I need to reshape my mouth

reshape my heart